Fall at work site kills Salem man

HROVATIC

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

The death of a Salem construction worker following a fall Wednesday at a North Lima business is under investigation. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), along with the Mahoning County Coroner's Office, is investigating the death of 19-year-old Alex Hrovatic, who reportedly fell through a roof 25 feet to cement ground at Mahoning Valley Water on South Street Extension (state Route 164) Wednesday morning. He worked for Witmer's Construction east of Washingtonville. He succumbed to injuries early Thursday. A cause of death is expected to be released today. According to Beaver Township Fire Chief Russ Osborne, EMS personnel responded to an initial report at 10:30 a.m. of a man who fell through the roof at the South Street facility. He said they found bystanders and co-workers administering CPR to the unconscious victim, assumed the life-saving efforts and had the victim en route to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Boardman within three minutes. A representative at Witmer's Construction said no one was available for comment about the incident. Hrovatic's Facebook page said he graduated from Salem High School in 2010 and attended Stark State College. No funeral arrangements have been released. Staff writer Larry Shields assisted with this report. Kevin Howell can be reached at khowell@salem-news.net

Zellers addresses role issue

SALEM — Councilman Dave Nestic played a dual role in a recent city council meeting, allowing him to both second a motion to have a rezoning ordinance prepared and vote on that motion, according to city Law Director Brooke Zellers. Zellers issued his written opinion on the matter Thursday night, a day after Councilman Clyde Brown raised an issue with how the vote was handled. He claimed the motion to rezone 6.9 acres from commercial to multiple family residential and 14.3 acres from multiple family to single family residential should have died for lack of a second because Nestic was acting as president pro tempore in Council President Mickey Cope Weaver's absence. West Branch BOE utilizing retire-rehire option

DR. WEINGART

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

The West Branch Local school board Thursday night approved the retirement of schools Superintendent Dr. Scott Weingart under the retire-rehire program. Weingart is set to retire on March 1 and be rehired March 2 to the same position on a two-and-half year contract. The contract will include a 10 percent pay cut and a salary freeze at $86,400 per year for the life of the contract. The action will save the district an estimated $30,000 over the life of the contract. "West Branch has offered the rehire-retire option to all staff members for the past several years," Weingart said. "Our school board has always seen the financial value in offering the retire-rehire option. The program has saved the district hundreds of thousands of dollars over the past decade. In this time of tremendous financial challenge, this is one tool that is available to public institutions to reduce payroll costs while retaining experienced staff members." Weingart is in his ninth year as superintendent of West Branch Local Schools. He is the current president of the Ohio Association of Local School Superintendents, serves as a mentor to new superintendents through the Executive Coaching Program sponsored by BASA (Buckeye Association of School Administrators) and holds a position on the Board of Directors

Home sweet Christmas!

Just in time for the holidays, a Salem family receives keys to new Habitat of Humanity home

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

SALEM — Anita Arkwright, her son Kaleb and her daughter Brooke received their Christmas gift a few days early this year — a set of keys to a new home Thursday night. "I feel blessed, very blessed," Anita said. The Arkwrights are the latest family to move into a home constructed through the Habitat for Humanity of Northern Columbiana County. To date, there have been 33 all together, with 16 of those in Salem. The last home dedicated was also on Fourth Street. "We don't often dedicate a house in December, but we're so glad we were part of Anita's journey. It's a special time of year and a special event," Habitat Executive Director Barb Loudon said. "It's a Christmas miracle. It's awesome," 16-year-old Kaleb said. An employee of the housekeeping department at Salem Community Hospital, Anita, Kaleb and 12-year-old Brooke had been living in a two-bedroom apartment at Briargate in Salem. She's divorced and grew up in the Columbiana area, going to school at Crestview. When she learned she had qualified for a Habitat home, she was in shock. She said she just couldn't believe it. As part of the deal, families must contribute sweat equity by working on another family's home and then on their own home. In this case, they logged more than 250 hours of sweat equity. She grew up with her father in construction, but said she still learned a lot from Scott Craven, the Habitat construction manager. He presented her with the keys at the dedication Thursday. "They nicknamed me 'tar baby' because I had more tar on me than on the walls," she said with a laugh. Families also have to pay a mortgage payment which includes property taxes and homeowners insurance, but it's more affordable because its 0 percent interest and Habitat acts as the lender. Employees from the hospital, including CEO Steve Ruwoldt, kicked off the construction of the home by building the

ALMANAC

On Dec. 21, 1937, Walt Disney's first feature-length animated cartoon, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," had its world premiere. In 1620, Pilgrims aboard the Mayflower went ashore for the first time at present-day Plymouth, Mass. In 1861, President Abraham Lincoln signed a congressional act authorizing the Navy Medal of Honor. In 1942, the U.S. Supreme Court, in Williams v. North Carolina, ruled 6-2 that all states had to recognize divorces granted in Nevada. In 1945, Gen. George S. Patton died in Heidelberg, Germany, of injuries from a car accident. In 1948, the state of Eire, or Ireland, passed an act declaring itself a republic. In 1958, Charles de Gaulle was elected to a seven-year term as the first president of the Fifth Republic of France. In 1988, 270 people were killed when a terrorist bomb exploded aboard a Pam Am Boeing 747 over Lockerbie, Scotland.

Kasich appoints judge to Supreme Court

COLUMBUS (AP) — Republican Gov. John Kasich appointed appellate judge Judith French to the Ohio Supreme Court on Thursday.

French has served on the 10th District Court of Appeals in Columbus since 2004. Before that, she served as chief legal counsel to Gov. Bob Taft and chief counsel and assistant attorney general under Attorney General Betty Montgomery.

Kasich named French as his pick to fill the two years remaining on the term of Justice Evelyn Lundberg Stratton, who announced her retirement this spring. French would have to run in 2014 to remain on the court.

She will be one of three new faces after two incumbent justices — Democrat Yvette McGee Brown and Republican Robert Cupp — lost their November re-election bids. Neither McGee Brown nor Cupp was among the 13 judges and lawyers who applied to fill Lundberg Stratton's opening.

Kasich named French as his pick to fill the two years remaining on the term of Justice Evelyn Lundberg Stratton, who announced her retirement this spring. French would have to run in 2014 to remain on the court.

She will be one of three new faces after two incumbent justices — Democrat Yvette McGee Brown and Republican Robert Cupp — lost their November re-election bids. Neither McGee Brown nor Cupp was among the 13 judges and lawyers who applied to fill Lundberg Stratton's opening.

The retiring justice said in May that she had decided to “pursue a different course” helping disabled veterans caught up in the criminal justice system.

Stratton, 59, plans to take on a state and national role directing troubled veterans to benefits available through the Department of Veterans Affairs, perhaps as a consultant. Since Stratton created a statewide advisory committee on mental health issues in the state, Ohio has gone from having two mental health courts to 34 such courts and 144 specialized dockets.

She said the intensive workload and ethical restrictions of being a justice kept her from working on social causes she is passionate about.

Stratton, a Republican, spent 16 years on the high court. French will serve a term scheduled to end Jan. 1, 2015. She received her bachelor's, master's and law degrees from The Ohio State University.

In picking French, Kasich passed by Ohio State Bar Association president Patrick Fischer, a Cincinnati appellate judge, and Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Pat DeWine, the son of Ohio Attorney General Mike DeWine.

One dead, one hurt in Toledo stabbings

TOLEDO (AP) — Police in Ohio say a fight between two students at the University of Toledo has left one dead and another injured.

University police say both men had been stabbed.

Officers say both were found Wednesday night outside a dormitory where they were staying during the school's holiday break.

Only a handful of students were staying in the building. The school's police chief says the men knew each other and that this wasn't a random attack.

He says the fight took place in a stairwell inside the dormitory.

Police say the student who survived was found outside the front of the building, and the man who died was found about 10 minutes later.

No charges have been filed.

College gets record donation from caterer

SOUTH EUCLID, Ohio (AP) — A small northeast Ohio college has been given its biggest gift ever: A donation of more than $2 million from the catering company that provides its cafeteria food service.

The donation from Normandy Catering is a record gift for the 90-year-old Notre Dame College in South Euclid, near Cleveland.

The (Cleveland) Plain Dealer reports that most of the money will go toward student aid, with some toward the annual fund and general building initiatives. The $2.075 will be donated over 10 years.

The Wickliffe company has been providing food service since 1999 to the Roman Catholic college of about 2,100 stu-

Woman facing 5th drunken driving charge

SANDUSKY (AP) — Authorities in northern Ohio say a woman convicted four times of drunken driving has been arrested a fifth time on the same charge — this time with her 8-year-old son and an open bottle of rum in the car.

Police in Perkins Township near Sandusky say 32-year-old Brandi Feltis of Vermilion was arrested last weekend after a tipster reported seeing her weave off the road 20 times.

She has been charged with child endangering, drunken driving and having an open liquor container. She's in jail with a $15,370 bond.

The (Lorain) Morning Journal reports she has drunken driving convictions in 2011, 2007 and twice in 2003.

No home phone number could be found for Feltis, and there is no attorney listed for her in court records.

Umbrella leads to school lockdown

AKRON (AP) — Authorities say an elderly man carrying an umbrella that was mistaken for a rifle led to a brief panic and lock-down at a northeast Ohio high school.

Police say an employee at Hudson High School in the Akron area reported the man in a hunting cap carrying what looked like a rifle Wednesday morning.

Principal Brian Wilch told the Akron Beacon Journal that doors were immediately barricaded and an alert sent to parents.

The lockdown was canceled after the man was located and identified. Wilch said “everyone is on edge” after the shooting at a Newtown, Conn., elementary school last week that killed 20 children and six adults.

In Medina, south of Cleveland, authorities locked down an elementary school Wednesday morning after an empty shell casing was found.

Mom charged after thrown baby dies

TOLEDO (AP) — A northwest Ohio woman who police say threw her 6-month-old son has been charged with murder after the baby died from his injuries.

Charges against 25-year-old Amanda Bacon were upgraded to murder Wednesday after the death of her son Avery Glynn Bacon at a hospital. Police accuse the Toledo woman of throwing the baby against a hard surface, causing multiple skull fractures and brain damage.

Police say it's not clear when the abuse occurred. The boy was taken to a hospital early Monday.

Bacon was arraigned Wednesday and a $1 million bond set. Records did not indicate whether she had an attorney.

Man jailed for swiping bags from airport

COLUMBUS (AP) — Police at a central Ohio airport say a man has been arrested six times over the past decade for stealing luggage from the airport's baggage carousels.

The latest bust at Port Columbus International Airport got Michael White a two-year prison sentence. That was in May, when police said he stole a knapsack and suitcase. He pleaded guilty.

Airport police Sgt. Troy Mills said the 48-year-old White also served time after three of the previous arrests at the airport. He was first arrested in 2003.

The Columbus Dispatch reports that White has been arrested in the baggage terminal and at a city bus stop. He was once arrested after police said he tried to sell a stolen camera to a pawn shop.

His public defender declined to comment.

Missing woman's body found in river

COLUMBUS (AP) — Authorities in central Ohio say a 72-year-old woman who went missing earlier this week has been found dead in a river.

Columbus police say Bessie Smith was living at a YWCA when she was last seen Tuesday.

Her body was found in the Scioto River on Wednesday morning. The Columbus Dispatch reports that someone spotted the body near a park trail.

An autopsy will be conducted to determine how she died. Police do not suspect foul play.

Phonics lesson led to fatal beating of boy, 5

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Investigators say a 5-year-old Philadelphia boy died after being beaten by his mother's boyfriend during a home schooling lesson.

Prosecutors say 25-year-old Christian Patrick admitted to police that he hit Dashawn Harris with a belt and punched him repeatedly in the chest when he had difficulty sounding out the word “sad.”

Police say 23-year-old Lashay Patterson told them she knew Patrick was hitting her son inside their apartment on Nov. 30 but it “didn't sound like he was breaking any bones or nothing like that.”

The couple allegedly failed to seek medical attention until the next day, when Dashawn was already dead.

The Philadelphia Inquirer reports they were bound over for trial on murder charges at Wednesday's hearing.

Patrick's attorney says his client didn't intend to kill the boy and mental health issues were a factor in the case. Patterson's attorney did not immediately return a phone message.

Atheists hang solstice banner in square

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — A banner proclaiming religion a myth has joined a Nativity display and menorah in a northeastern Pennsylvania town square.

Two Wilkes-Barre men paid a $50 fee to hang the banner supplied by the Freedom From Religion Foundation in the same public square that the town's Christmas tree has been erected.

The banner reads, in part, “At this Season of the Winter Solstice, Let Reason Prevail.”

Justin Vacula and Rodney Collins paid the fee for the banner's display.

The NEPA Freethought Society members say the city is being courageous to allow diverse viewpoints.

Vacula tells The Citizens' Voice of Wilkes-Barre that atheists are entitled to share their views if religious displays are allowed on public land.

A city spokesman says Wilkes-Barre can't discriminate and endorses no religious beliefs.

Stranded motorist dies in snow storm

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A woman is dead after she tried to walk for help when her car got stuck during the snow storm in southwestern Utah.

Washington County Sheriff's detective Nate Abbott says the woman and a man were driving when their car got stuck in rural Washington County Tuesday night during the storm that hit the Rocky Mountain region.

He says the pair started walking for help, but the woman couldn't go any further and sought shelter while the man continued on.

He eventually took refuge close to a reservoir and stayed there until morning when he located some snowmobilers.

Search and rescue crews who used snowmobiles to look for the woman found her dead in the snow, a few miles from the car.

An autopsy is planned. No names were released.

Federal judge upholds Ohio's new exotic-animal law

COLUMBUS (AP) — Seven people who sued Ohio over its new law cracking down on exotic animals say they're disappointed a federal judge has upheld it.

Their attorney, Robert Owens, says they plan to appeal.

State lawmakers passed the tougher restrictions after a suicidal man released dozens of his animals including bears, lions and tigers from his farm in Zanesville last year.

The people who sued say the new law forces them to join private associations with which they disagree and possibly give up their animals without compensation. They challenged a requirement animals be implanted with microchips for identification in case they get lost or escape.

The Columbus judge ruled Thursday the animal owners failed to prove their constitutional rights were violated.

Ohio officials have defended the law as a common-sense measure to address a public safety problem.

High school closed today after bomb threat

EMMAUS, Pa. (AP) — A high school in eastern Pennsylvania will be closed Friday after officials received a bomb threat.

Emmaus High School made the announcement in an automated call to parents on Thursday. The school also announced the closure on its website. All other buildings in the East Penn School District will remain open.

School officials say law enforcement officials will be searching and sweeping the building Friday. Events at the school were also canceled or moved on Thursday afternoon and evening. Police say they don't have any suspects.

Emmaus is about 40 miles north of Philadelphia.

The threat comes nearly a week after the shootings that left 20 children and six adults dead at an elementary school in Newtown, Conn.

OUR SIDE

Semper Fidelis: Always faithful

Well-served are our citizens by the United States Marines. They serve us on the battlefield and off. They are what being red, white and blue — of being a true American is all about. That patriotism comes in different forms.

Here is an example of a wonderful act by a Marine. And it didn't involve a combat zone or engagement of any enemy. But it merits praise.

This Wednesday past, according to the Associated Press, a Marine veteran of Iraq and Afghanistan took up self-imposed duty in front of a central California elementary school in the wake of the Connecticut shooting.

Sgt. Craig Pusley stood all day in fatigues in front of the flag pole at the school just southeast of Modesto. He was not armed.

Pusley, who served two tours in Iraq and one in Afghanistan before leaving active duty last year, told the school principal that "he wanted to make the kids feel safe in light of what happened at Sandy Hook Elementary," the principal said.

The veteran Marine arrived at the K-3 school a little before 7:30 a.m. and asked permission to stand guard. He stood in front of the flag pole until 2:30 p.m. He did so without taking any breaks. He was back to stand sentry on Thursday, the school's last day before the holiday break.

Sgt. Pusley is a father of a 3-year-old and his wife is expecting another child. He told the Modesto Bee that he decided to take action after reading a Facebook post urging soldiers to be posted at every school in the wake of last week's tragic shooting in Connecticut.

"When I enlisted, I swore to defend this country from all enemies, foreign and domestic," Sgt. Pusley said. "I just want to be sure all these kids go home safe for Christmas."

What a thoughtful and kind gesture this was by a Marine who had already well-served his country with two active duties. Imagine the figure he cut, the example he set, for those schoolchildren. Imagine the lesson of life he taught those children of never feeling alone and never feeling scared. He is a hero to those kids.

It will take some time and some doing across our nation to heal the confused and bewildered young souls shaken by what occurred over a few horrific moments in a Connecticut school building. But acts by that proud Marine and those of hundreds of others across our country will go a long way in the soothing process. Such acts are indeed the American way. We would expect no less.

hearts out are young men with serious mental illnesses, and our system has neither the legal nor the financial resources to get them the treatment and/or restraint that they, and we, desperately need.

This time, mental health reform has received passing mention, along with the usual pleas for gun control, better security at schools, and so forth.

Some control of ammunition might be useful at the margins (though the Connecticut killer seems to have obtained his deadly arsenal from his mother). As for security, some have argued that placing armed officials in schools would profoundly alter the tenor of American life. I can report that in Fairfax County, Va., where my children attend public schools, every middle and high school has an armed police officer on duty every day. It doesn't feel like a prison camp. It's somewhat reassuring.

Modesty is called for in judging what causes these mass killings in America and elsewhere (Australia, Norway and China have also experienced them). Guns have always been readily available in this country, yet these random massacres in classrooms or malls or movie theaters full of innocent strangers are new. Is it the dissolution of families? The decline of religious faith? The fading of civil institutions, such as churches and community groups? Is popular culture to blame? Is it the wall-to-wall coverage?

It's worth considering all of the above. These are the acts of profoundly disturbed or insane individuals, yes, but culture affects the way even the mentally unbalanced behave. The rate of violent crime has been declining for more than a decade, which suggests that we are not in grip of mass depravity. But if we believe great works have the capacity to ennoble, we must concede that vile works can corrupt.

Mass shooting has become an American form of psychosis — with each new horror

Health care law still fighting for its life

percent offer a negative view. The reasons are pretty much the same as they've been all along. Just 22 percent believe the law will reduce the cost of health care. Forty-eight percent believe costs will go up. By similar margins, voters expect the law to hurt the quality of care and drive up the federal budget deficit.

Overall, just 28 percent believe the health care system will get better over the coming years, while 50 percent expect the opposite. Most Democrats believe things will get better, but few Republicans or unaffiliated voters agree.

This skepticism might not matter except for the fact that the law counts on the cooperation of states to implement the federal plan. States were called upon to set up so-called health insurance exchanges that the president envisioned as a one-stop shopping place for health insurance products. However, the Dec. 14 deadline for states to sign up showed that fewer than half the states are willing to go along.

The federal government will have to run the exchanges in those states, a task few believe it is prepared to handle. The timetable is challenging, to say the least. These exchanges must be ready to accept patients by Oct. 1, 2013, and be fully operational by Jan. 1, 2014. If that's not enough, the federal exchanges will need to rely on cooperation from state agencies in places that have officially refused to cooperate.

If the president's health care law were popular, this kind of state-by-state resistance would provoke outrage and be dangerous to the politicians involved. But it has not. Only a third of voters nationwide even know whether their state has decided to open an exchange.

Fewer than half (46 percent) of the nation's voters want their state to set up an exchange, and voters are evenly divided between whether they want their governor to support or oppose implementation. Generally speaking, Democrats want their governors to be supportive; Republicans want their governors to resist; and unaffiliated voters are divided.

Last March, I wrote that the health care law was doomed regardless of what the Supreme Court decided. That still appears to be the case. With the reelection of the president and a Democratic Senate, formal repeal is not going to happen. However, the realities of implementation will provide many avenues for ongoing resistance. Some will be financial, as businesses and others evaluate their options. Some will be legal, as a number of cases continue to work their way through the courts.

But the biggest challenge is more basic. Voters want more control over their own health care choices than either the status quo or the president's law allows. Voters are OK with the requirement in Obama's plan forcing insurance companies to offer comprehensive coverage, but 74 percent think everyone should also have the right to choose between expensive plans that cover just about every imaginable medical procedure and lower-cost plans that cover a smaller number of procedures.

Giving consumers that kind of choice would be a popular reform. Giving them that kind of control over insurance companies would do more to reign in the cost of medical care than anything else.

OTHER VOICES

Dec. 10

Enterprise-Journal, McComb, Miss.,
on automobile "black boxes":

You've heard of those "black boxes" on airplanes that record data used to determine the cause of a crash.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is expected to soon propose regulations requiring automobile manufacturers to install similar equipment on all new cars and light trucks.

What most motorists don't know is that automakers on their own have been quietly installing data-recording devices in some vehicles for years. The devices can record the actions of drivers and the responses of their cars and pickup trucks.

According to an Associated Press article, when a car equipped with such devices "is involved in a crash or when its airbags deploy, inputs from the vehicle's sensors during the five to 10 seconds before impact are automatically preserved. That's usually enough to record things like how fast the car was traveling and whether the driver applied the brake, was steering erratically or had a seat belt on."

Sounds like a good thing — especially when it comes to lawsuits involving both drivers and manufacturers. Such equipment can be useful in placing blame where it belongs.

Also, the recorders can help identify defects in automobiles, showing manufacturers things they need to correct.

But such devices are not without controversy. Already privacy advocates are insisting on rules and limits on how much information can be gathered and how it can be used.

Perhaps they'll make a valid argument for some limits, but we doubt it.

In our view, the benefits of using reliable data to produce safer vehicles, as well as helping establish accurate blame for crashes, outweigh privacy concerns.

Entertainment control might make most difference

In the wake of past mass shootings, when the "national conversation" has focused exclusively on guns, I have argued that our appallingly inadequate mental health system was a better subject of reform. At least half of the shooters in the rampage killings that are ripping our hearts out are young men with serious mental illnesses, and our system has neither the legal nor the financial resources to get them the treatment and/or restraint that they, and we, desperately need.

This time, mental health reform has received passing mention, along with the usual pleas for gun control, better security at schools, and so forth.

Some control of ammunition might be useful at the margins (though the Connecticut killer seems to have obtained his deadly arsenal from his mother). As for security, some have argued that placing armed officials in schools would profoundly alter the inviting an even more grotesque imitator.

Mental illness takes different forms in different times and places. Before American culture became obsessed with thinness as a standard of beauty, anorexia nervosa was exceedingly rare. In Japan, a culture that prizes social cohesion, people suffer from taijin kyofusho, an extreme fear of offending other people through body odor or appearance. In Malaysia, reports Scientific American, an illness called "amok" (from which comes the expression "running amok") periodically afflicts young men. They respond to perceived slights with a brooding withdrawal, followed by explosions of violence. In Greenland, some seal hunters get a syndrome called "kayak angst" featuring intense panic while out on the ocean.

With our splintering families, declining participation in civil society, and greater alienation, we are nonetheless entertaining ourselves with an endless stream of depraved violence and sexuality. Many kids are not having a family dinner with mom and dad every night, but instead are closeted hour after hour with a shooting game on Xbox. No one is watching with them to offer commentary or perspective.

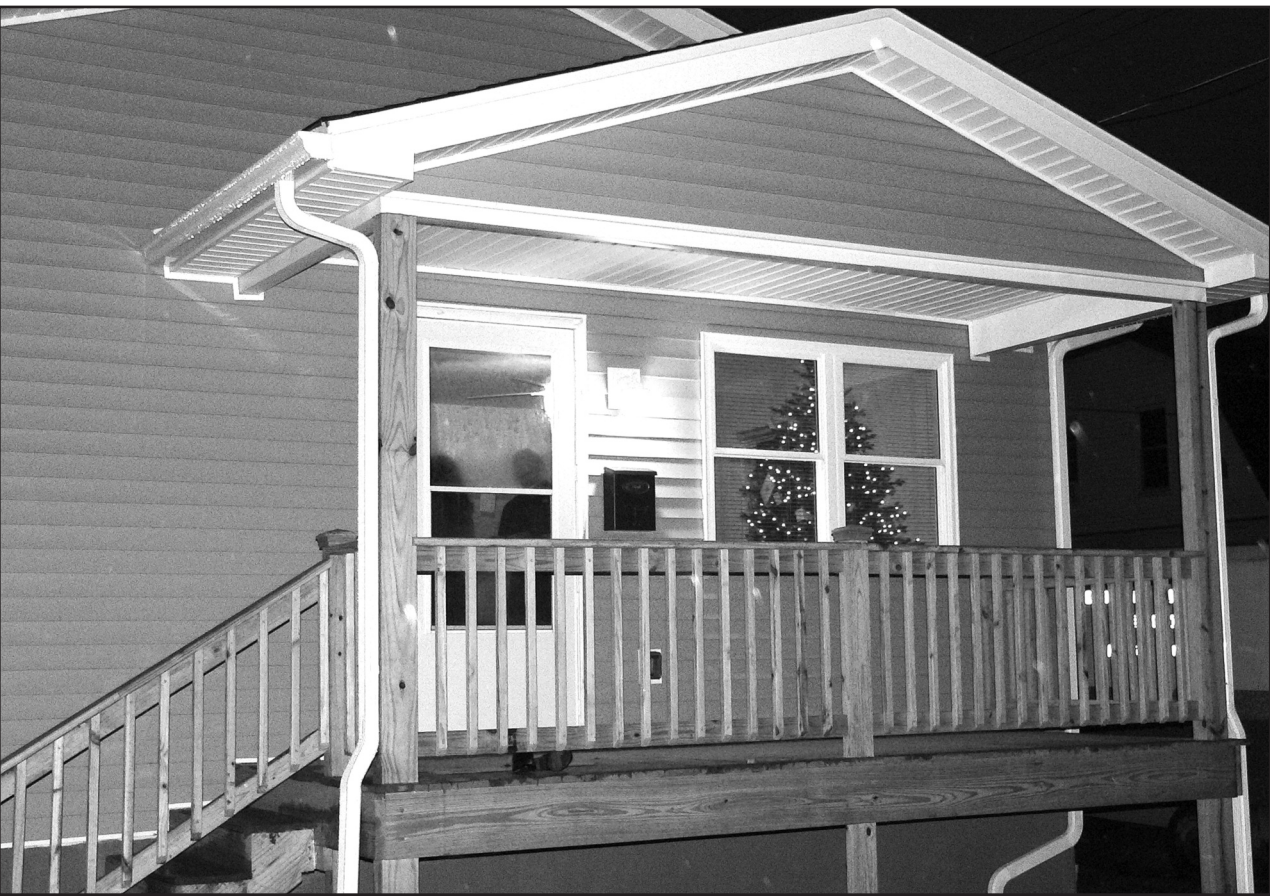

Violence and sex have, obviously, always been with us. Hamlet has its violent moments. Yet the violence of great literature, or even of ordinary melodrama, was usually presented within a moral context. It was nearly always the case that heroic figures used violence to thwart evil, not for the fun of it.

Some filmmakers scoffed at the "antiseptic" violence of the old Westerns in which the bad guys would take a bloodless bullet, cry "Ah, you got me," and fall from their horses. Far better, it was argued, to show a simulacrum of the real thing.

But viewing realistic violence and suffering, far from repelling or sensitizing people, has the capacity to inure us to the horror, dull our capacity for compassion, and coarsen our sensibilities. Worse, for a subset of unbalanced viewers, graphic violence is perversely pleasurable. It may also be disinhibiting. The Columbine killers were great fans of the movie Natural Born Killers.

It will require tremendous effort, time, and resources to repair our mental health system. But it would be a simple matter of will for entertainers to ask themselves, before marketing a violence-soaked film or game: "How will this affect the mentally unstable?"

Lisbon Council still must resolve complaints

By TOM GIAMBRONI
Staff Writer

LISBON — Village Council has yet to make a decision on resolving complaints left over from the West Chestnut Street storm sewer project.

Council decided at its Nov. 19 meeting to withhold final payment to the contractor and project engineer until the last several issues raised by two residents were resolved to the village’s satisfaction.

Although several council members toured the Persic property on West Chestnut and Day property on Cedar Street in early December, the issues apparently remain unresolved. The issue was on the agenda at this week’s council meeting but no discussion occurred, nor was any action taken.

Also on the agenda was the status of proposed legislation requiring the village be notified when a foreclosed property has been sold in Lisbon and identifying the owner as a way to keep track of abandoned properties, and leg-isolation repealing the village law banning Sunday sales of alcohol by village restaurants.

There was no updates on the legislation because village solicitor Virginia Barborak was absent due to an ill child.

In other action, council voted to pay $940 to John Thoman of Sherman Street after the sewer line to his house was crushed by a catch basin installed by the village over the line as part of improvements made to the street several years ago.

The home had been vacant until Thoman moved in four months ago and discovered the line had been crushed. The $940 represents what he spent to have the line repaired by an excavator.

“If we created the problem, we should fix it,” said Council President Roger Gallo.

Ray Perrino of Willowbrook Sand & Gravel, state Route 154, asked council for permission to replace an old house trailer with a newer one on property he recently purchased next to his business.

Perrino said he has problems with thieves at his business, and he would like for an employee to live in the house trailer and keep an eye on the property.

Chery Mills, zoning board secretary, said the area along Route 154 is now zoned highway business, which prohibits new residential housing in any form.

“We cannot allow that because it’s in a business district,” she said.

Perrino was told he would be allowed to move an office trailer onto the property, but no one could live there. Mills said the property would also have to be built up to meet the new flood plain requirements.

Mills also pointed out the house trailer currently on the property is on the list of properties to be demolished by the village using state funds available through Columbiana County commissions.

Perrino indicated he would consider his options before deciding what to do with the property.

have the power to make or second motions and can only vote in case of a tie. Brown said since Nestic was acting as president, it was wrong for him to second the motion initiated by Councilman Rick Drummond and to vote on it.

Zellers agreed the meeting was “an actual council meeting,” and members of the Planning Commission were there as guests to discuss their previously made recommendations regarding a zoning issue. He said the joint meetings were put in place years ago “in order to streamline the process for enacting or amending zoning.”

He said since Weaver was not present for the council meeting, Nestic, as president pro tempore, “would be responsible to discharge the duties and be clothed with the power of the President in her absence pursuant to Rule 30 of the Rules Governing the Council of the City of Salem.”

“However, because Mr. Nestic is also a sitting member of Council, 1962 Ohio Attorney General Opinion 3203, which is still valid today, allows that he is entitled to vote when there is a roll call on a question and in other cases where his vote would change the result, but would not be allowed to vote to create a tie and then subsequently break that tie as normally would be allowed by the President of Council,” Zellers wrote.

“Based upon the foregoing it is my opinion that Mr. Nestic, because of his dual role, would therefore be able to second a motion that was put onto the floor and vote on it unless his vote created a tie,” the written opinion said.

Zellers emailed copies of the opinion to Mayor John Berlin, Brown, Nestic and other members of council, along with the Salem News.

Earlier in the day, Nestic said the meeting was treated like a joint meeting of council with the planning commission.

“I don’t know that I have to relinquish any vote,” he said.

He said Brown raised some issues and questions that Zellers would have to decide. Berlin commented that in the story about the issue in Thursday’s paper, Brown said he had not heard from Zellers or Berlin after he raised the issue. According to Berlin, Brown never asked him to respond, saying he would have if Brown had asked him to. He attended the meeting as a member of the Planning Commission.

The Planning Commission had already taken action to recommend the rezoning of two sections of a 67.7-acre parcel the NRP Group of Cleveland has an option to purchase on East Pershing Street, Butcher Road and Cunningham Road. The company is planning a three-phase housing development of apartments and single-family homes.

Phase I consists of a 120-unit walk-up apartment complex located just south of Pershing Street and southwest of Butcher Road. Brown and Councilman K. Bret Apple both voted against having an ordinance prepared for council to consider. Nestic, Drummond and Councilwoman Cyndi Baronzzi Dickey all voted in favor of the motion.

Kasich signs bill to allow guns in Capitol lot

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio Gov. John Kasich has signed a bill allowing guns to be left in vehicles parked in two garages located under the Statehouse and other state office buildings. The Republican governor signed the measure Thursday amid national calls to reduce gun violence. Kasich says he sees the measure as unrelated to the Connecticut school shootings in which 20 children and six adults died. The governor says it protects Second Amendment rights of law-abiding citizens. The new law also changes how the state defines an unloaded weapon and eliminates a competency requirement for renewing concealed-carry permit holders.

Coaches comment on school shootings

Winthrop's Kelsey uses platform to make statement

The game was over, and the postgame interview appeared to be, too, when Winthrop coach Pat Kelsey suddenly decided otherwise. By then, the sting of his team's 65-55 loss to Ohio State was already an afterthought. Instead, like a lot of us, he was still heartbroken about the school shootings in Newtown, determined to say something about them.

"The last thing I want to say," Kelsey began, as reporters scrambled to turn their tape recorders back on Tuesday night, "is I'm really, really lucky, because I'm going to get on an eight-hour bus ride, and I'm going to arrive in Rock Hill, South Carolina, and I'm going to walk into my house, and I'm going to walk upstairs, and I'm going to walk into two pink rooms with a 5-year-old and a 4-year-old laying in that pink room, with a bunch of teddy bears laying in that room.

"And I'm going to give them the biggest hug and the biggest kiss I've ever given them. And there's 20 families in Newtown, Conn., that are walking into a pink room with a bunch of teddy bears with nobody laying in those beds," he said. "And it's tragic."

No one in the room knew that was coming, nor the call to action that came next. The only thing that was certain was that Kelsey's voice grew stronger the longer he went on.

"I know this microphone is powerful right now because we're playing the (seventh)-best team in the country. I'm not going to have a microphone like this the rest of the year, maybe the rest of my life. And I'm going to be an agent of change with the 13 young men I get to coach every day and the two little girls that I get to raise. ...

"But," he said, "we've got to change."

Kelsey is one of dozens of mid-major coaches hoping for a job at a big school like Ohio State someday, but he's a parent first. When he played basketball at Cincinnati, Kelsey was a captain

Lady Eagles hold off Range

United remains unbeaten on the season

Staff Reports

United 37, South Range 30

HANOVERTON — United held off South Range for a 37-30 victory Thursday in Inter-Tri County League Tier 1 girls hoops action. The Lady Eagles remain unbeaten on the season.

Leading the Lady Eagles was Emily Zehentbauer and Cassidy Yoder with 11 points each.

"It was a tough victory for us tonight," United head coach Sam Mathias said. "South Range is a very good team and we knew we were going to be in for a battle. The girls worked hard at the defensive end when our offense wasn't all there tonight. They gave great effort and kept battling the entire night."

NFL — BROWNS, WEEDEN PLAYING FOR PRIDE IN FINAL TWO GAMES

Job insecurity

Browns' Weeden needs strong finish to 2012 season

Closing strong? Cleveland Browns quarterback Brandon Weeden throws a pass against the Washington Redskins Sunday in Cleveland. Weeden may be playing for his future as the Browns close their season in Denver and Pittsburgh. (AP Photo)

BEREA (AP) — The play-offs are no longer possible. With two games left, the Cleveland Browns are reduced to playing for pride.

And for quarterback Brandon Weeden, maybe his future.

"At this point I've just got to let it fly," Weeden said.

"From here on out, just let it rip and be aggressive, continue to take shots and see where it ends up."

Weeden hopes that swashbuckling style puts points on the board and helps prove he is Cleveland's quarterback for the future despite being a 29-year-old rookie. A good game Sunday in Denver could shape the opinion of a new front office expected to make sweeping changes following a ninth losing season in 10 years by the Browns (5-9).

"I can't think about that," Weeden said. "I need to play well because I haven't played well enough. For myself, for this team, that's all I'm worried about."

Offensive coordinator Brad Childress said Thursday that Weeden has the right attitude: "Like he has done all year long, he has to keep shooting."

Weeden misfired, though, in Cleveland's final home game, a 38-21 loss to Washington after a three-game winning streak. He looked indecisive following two costly interceptions the Redskins turned into 14 points.

Steelers defense lacking in big plays

Pittsburgh ranks 27th in NFL in turnovers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Every time a pass comes his way, Pittsburgh Steelers cornerback

Keenan Lewis is faced with a choice: the ball or the man?

If Lewis chooses the ball, he knows he better be sure he can get a hand on it. If he chooses the man, Lewis knows he better bring the guy down, or else.

"You don't make that tackle, they score a touchdown on you and you might be coming out," Lewis said.

Lewis has proven to be a pretty shrewd decision-maker. His 21 pass breakups lead the NFL and he's rarely been beaten deep while serving as the backbone of a secondary that leads the NFL in fewest yards passing allowed.

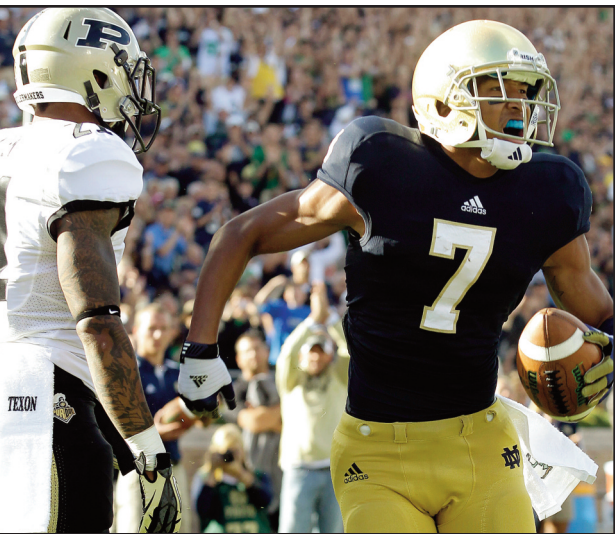

The one thing Lewis hasn't done, is actually catch the ball. Then again, neither have the rest of his teammates on the league's top-ranked defense.

For all their responsible tackling, the Steelers (7-7) have lacked a certain menace this season, and it could cost them a playoff spot.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame wide receiver T.J. Jones has plenty on his mind as he prepares for the talented Alabama secondary he'll face in the BCS championship game Jan. 7 in Miami.

Still, he can't help thinking about his late father, Andre, who died in June 2011 at age 42 after suffering a brain aneurysm. The elder Jones played on Notre hopes to place his own right next to it.

“Before I came here, we used to always talk about how cool it would be if we both won the national championship, especially if we won it at Notre Dame, once I committed here in high school,” Jones said after practice Thursday. “So I definitely have a more personal tie-in with what it means than somebody else might.”

Jones isn’t the only Irish player following in his father’s footsteps. He’s also one of several members of the nation’s top-ranked team who have overcome obstacles and setbacks to make it to college football’s biggest stage.Last year, Mike Golic Jr., whose father was a star defensive tackle for the Irish in the early 1980s and currently co-hosts a morning talk show on ESPN, had been unable to win a starting job on the offensive line. As a graduate student this season, his hard work and determination changed that.

Golic said there were times when he struggled to go on, but his dad was always there with encouragement and advice.

“You have to stay sharp,” he said his father told him. “You have to stay ready. If I wasn’t ready when my number was called, then I’m letting everyone else down as well as myself. Staying ready and being accountable for what I was responsible for in my role on the team at that point, was his message to me.” Golic said he appreciates how tough it will be to protect quarterback Everett Golson from Alabama’s swarming pass rush, but he’s confident. “They’re big, strong, talented college football players,” Golic said. “Fortunately for us, we go against big, strong, talented guys every day in practice, on our defense. Our defense is built very similar to theirs — a lot of very talented guys, big bodies, who play a very similar scheme and similar techniques.”

and twice voted the team’s most inspirational player. So maybe the most surprising thing about the past few days is that he wasn’t the only coach or player to step forward and say what was on his mind.

At Syracuse the other night, coach Jim Boeheim also used the last moments of his postgame interview to make certain the next day’s stories weren’t focused solely on his career milestone 900th win.

“If we cannot get the people who represent us to do something about firearms, we are a sad, sad society,” Boeheim said Monday. “If one person in this world, the NRA president, anybody, can tell me why we need assault weapons with 30 shots — this is our fault if we don’t go out there and do something about this. If we can’t get this thing done, I don’t know what kind of country we have.”

There were plenty of other worthy remarks and measured gestures from the world of sports in the aftermath of Newtown — almost too many to list. A few weeks ago, NBC announcer Bob Costas caught plenty of criticism by calling for saner gun-control laws during a brief halftime essay the night after the tragedy in Kansas City. Chiefs linebacker Javon Belcher shot his live-in girlfriend to death after an argument, then drove to the team’s facility and, in view of his coach and general manager, turned the gun on himself.

People are still debating whether Costas overstepped. Never mix sports and politics. But those were the old rules.

For years, many athletes and coaches went out of their way to avoid taking a stand on anything that happened outside the white lines. It was like stepping on the third rail of sports and almost a guarantee that endorsements would dwindle or disappear altogether. It might even cost them a job.

Times have changed, and if the events of the past few weeks are any indication, that corner of the sports world is about to change, too. Athletes and coaches have always had the platform, and now a few of the braver souls have shown them how to use it in a responsible way for something more important than selling tickets.

Here’s hoping there’s no turning back.

Pryor to have role this week for Raiders

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — After spending most of the season on the bench, Terrelle Pryor has been playing a key role this week for the Oakland Raiders by impersonating Cam Newton in practice.

Pryor could have an even higher-profile role come game time Sunday against the Carolina Panthers. Offensive coordinator Greg Knapp says Pryor will get on the field in certain specialty packages for the Raiders (4-10).

Pryor made his season debut last week, handing the ball off twice and throwing one incomplete pass as the coaching staff wanted to give him an entire series. The next step is using him in specific situations that can take advantage of his athleticism at quarterback.

“You’ll see him a little bit on third downs, you’ll see him maybe in the red zone, try to create a different look for the defense to contend with,” Knapp said.

“It won’t be so much the structure of last week, where he had a series, which we thought was fair to him. ... We’re going to try to use some of his athletic ability this week.” With more and more teams turning to dual-threat quarterbacks like Newton, Washington’s Robert Griffin III or San Francisco’s Colin Kaepernick, Pryor’s athleticism has been tantalizing for Raiders fans looking for any kind of bright spot to a disappointing season.

As a star at Ohio State, Pryor showed many of the same skills those other young quarterbacks are displaying. He just wants the opportunity to prove he can do what they’re doing in the NFL.

“Right now I don’t want to compare myself to Kaepernick or Cam or any of those guys because them guys and Griffin have proved it,” he said. “I turnovers forced (13) and is tied for 23rd in sacks (27). Not exactly the formula that led the Steelers to three Super Bowl appearances — and two wins — in a six-season span from 2005 to 2010.

While the lengthy absences of safety Troy Polamalu, linebackers James Harrison and LaMarr Woodley and cornerback Ike Taylor have played a role in the drop, the Steelers insist there are plays to be made, they’re just not making them.

“I’ve dropped a ball that hit me in my face against Kansas City,” said safety Ryan Clark, who has three of Pittsburgh’s seven interceptions. “Keenan dropped one against Tennessee. (Larry) Foote’s dropped balls. We’ve had opportunities and that’s on us.”

Hall-of-Fame defensive coordinator Dick LeBeau isn’t complaining. His job is to design schemes that slow opponents down. Getting the ball is a bonus.

“You can talk about a lot of statistics, but leading the league in yardage yielded is an important one,” LeBeau said. “Do we need more interceptions? Sure. We need more turnovers ... but every week we’re trying to keep our football team in the game, keep the score in a manageable position.”

Something the Steelers have done as well as anyone in the league. The game-turning plays, however, have been sporadic. Pittsburgh is on pace for its fewest turnovers and sacks since LeBeau returned for a second stint as defensive coordinator in 2004.

Some of it is the byproduct of a defense in transition.

A unit that began the season with seven starters in their 30s now features a secondary with four cornerbacks — Lewis, Cortez Allen, Curtis Brown and Josh Vitorian — 26 or younger. It’s the same along the defensive line, where 26-year-old nose tackle Steve McLendon is now basically a co-starter with 35-year-old Casey Hampton. Ditto the linebackers, where 24-year-old Jason Worilds leads the team with five sacks.

The youth movement has forced LeBeau to tinker a bit with his game plan. The Steelers spend the early portion of the game letting the youngsters get their feet set before unleashing the complex blitzes that are LeBeau’s trademarks.

“With the younger guys back there we hold off a little bit and kind of simplify and so guys can play a little bit faster and they kind of know what they’re doing,” Hampton said. “At the same time when it’s simple there really shouldn’t be no big plays or anything like that.”

Big plays haven’t killed the Steelers this season, but little ones. The proliferation of short passing attacks give the front seven less time to get to the quarterback and shorter routes mean fewer opportunities for defensive backs to get in front of the ball.

“You look at it we’ve probably been one of the best teams in the NFL this year taking away the deep ball,” Lewis said. “Teams ain’t really trying to throw deep like that no more. When you don’t have those plays, those short plays is (less) of a risk to make a mistake.”

The Steelers have allowed just 18 passes over 25 yards this season and opponents are averaging just 5.9 yards per pass attempt, the lowest in the league. Yet their inability to create turnovers has forced the offense to deal with long fields almost every time it gets the ball.

Clark pointed to a 34-24 loss to San Diego two weeks ago as proof that the defense needs to be more opportunistic. The Steelers held San Diego to three straight three-and-outs with the ball near midfield in the first half. Each time the Chargers pinned the Pittsburgh offense deep in its own end. Each time the Steelers ended up punting and the Chargers finally capitalized on the great field position.

“We weren’t flipping the field because we didn’t make a play, special teams didn’t make play and the offense didn’t make a play,” Clark said. “Flipping the field is a huge part of the play ... if you look at the games we lost, that’s why we lost.”

Not exactly. The Steelers have committed 27 turnovers this season, seventh-most in the league. Those miscues have often put the defense in difficult situations, even if Clark and company refuse to use it as an excuse.

If Pittsburgh was coasting into the playoffs — as it did last year when it created just 17 turnovers — the lack of takeaways wouldn’t be an issue. But the Steelers have dropped four of five and need to win out to play past Dec. 30. The season could come down to one or two tipped passes that turn into interceptions or one fumble that ends up with a guy in a black helmet on top of it.

“We definitely need to get more turnovers and sacks and things like that if we want to be successful,” Hampton said.

NOTES: Lewis missed practice on Thursday with a hip flexor and is questionable ... Polamalu sat out practice for the second straight day but it was not injury related.

BROWNS FROM 1B

“I think you get in the mindset where you’re thinking about being too cautious,” he said. “That’s when you’re not as accurate. I’m not going to blame it on being a rookie. That’s long gone. It’s on me. I’ve got to play better.”

Weeden will need to swiftly deliver the ball on against the Broncos (11-3). Linebacker Von Miller keys a stout defense that has helped Denver outscore opponents by 114 points during nine straight wins. His 16 sacks are third in the NFL and one shy of the Broncos record by Elvis Dumervil in 2009. Dumervil and Miller also have six forced fumbles apiece this year.

“He’s good, one of the best I faced in college,” Weeden said of Miller. “He didn’t sack me, but he got a personal foul for a late hit, 15 yards. I think I kind of still feel it.”

Five-time Pro Bowl left tackle Joe Thomas’ goal is to help keep Weeden’s uniform clean. He knows it is a tough task; Denver has 42 sacks overall.

“It’s tough to say definitively, ‘Yes, they are the best,’” Thomas said of Denver’s dynamic defensive duo. “They’re certainly in the top couple of tandems.”

“Miller may be the fastest guy on their defense, corners and safeties included. When you talk about the combination of speed, quickness and you put him out there rushing the quarterback at 240 pounds or whatever he is, that’s a tough group of talent to deal with.”

Weeden has had decent protection, being sacked only 26 times. And though he’s thrown three more interceptions than his 14 touchdown passes, Weeden has passed for 3,281 yards. That’s 10th best in Browns history and the seventh highest ever by an NFL rookie.

“Numbers are getting thrown out the window now that we’re obviously not in the playoff hunt anymore,” Weeden said. “Now it’s just going out, playing well, getting better.”

While he’s at it, he wouldn’t mind outslinging one of his heroes, Peyton Manning.

“He’s always been one of my favorite players,” Weeden said. “He’s not only a great quarterback, but one of the smartest to ever play this game. He’s what every quarterback kind of shoots to be.”

“I can’t say it’s daunting. It’ll be fun. I’m excited about the challenge.”

NOTES: KR-WR Josh Cribbs won the Pro Bowl fan vote for AFC special teamer. “It means a lot, coming from the fans,” he said. Fans, players and coaches votes each count one-third toward determining the 43-man rosters. Cribbs was second to Baltimore’s Jacoby Jones at kick returner. Other Browns in top five: K Phil Dawson, second to Oakland’s Sebastian Janikowski; MLB D’Qwell Jackson, second; OT Joe Thomas, fourth; and rookie RB Trent Richardson, fifth. ... WR Mohamed Massaquoi (knee) DL Frostee Rucker (hip) and TE Jordan Cameron (head) did not practice. ... Cameron is being treated for concussion-like symptoms. Alex Smith and rookie Brad Smiley are most likely to replace him.

Cavs recall F Jon Leuer

CLEVELAND (AP) — The slumping Cavaliers recalled forward Jon Leuer from their Canton affiliate in the NBA Development League.

Leuer has appeared in six games (all starts) for the Charge this season. He averaged 20.3 points and 12.3 rebounds in 35.8 minutes as the Charge went 5-1 in those games. Leuer played in five games this season for Cleveland, averaging 3.2 points and 2.0 rebounds in 14.4 minutes.

Leuer will be available Friday night when the Cavs, who have lost five straight, host Indiana.

Cleveland is 5-22 and has had several key players miss times with injuries. Center Anderson Varejao, the NBA’s leading rebounder, sat out Wednesday night’s game in Boston with a bruised right knee. It’s not yet known if Varejao will play against the Pacers.

Pitt wins 7th straight, drops Delaware State 71-43

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tailb Zanna scored six of his game-high 20 points to spark a second-half run and Pittsburgh pulled away from Delaware State for a 71-43 victory on Wednesday night.

J.J. Moore added 15 points and Steven Adams had 10 points, eight rebounds and four blocks for the Panthers (11-1), who clamped down on the Hornets in the second half to continue their December domination of a tame nonconference schedule.

Delaware State (5-7) was Pitt’s third Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference opponent in the last three weeks, and after some early success the Hornets went down quietly much like Howard and Bethune-Cookman before them.

Tahj Tate led Delaware State with 19 points but Delaware State couldn’t keep pace when the Panthers got serious in the second half.

Phil Mickelson, Bubba Watson set for Phoenix Open

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Two-time champion Phil Mickelson and Masters winner Bubba Watson have committed to play in the Phoenix Open.

Defending champion Kyle Stanley, 2011 winner Mark Wilson and 2010 champion Hunter Mahan also are entered in the Jan. 31-Feb. 3 event along with Rickie Fowler, Nick Watney, Carl Pettersson, Nicolas Colsaerts and Lucas Glover.

Mickelson won at TPC Scottsdale in 1996 and 2005. The former Arizona State star will open his season Jan. 17-20 in the Humana Challenge in La Quinta, Calif.

Bubba Watson, Ping present $250,000 to hospital

PHOENIX (AP) — Masters champion Bubba Watson and golf equipment maker Ping presented $250,000 to the Phoenix Children’s Hospital on Thursday for use in the construction of Arizona’s first pediatric gait lab.

The money was raised as part of the “Bubba & Friends Drive to a Million” effort in partnership with Ping’s “Bubba Long in Pink. Driven by Ping” campaign. To help raise funds for Phoenix-area charities, Ping has donated $50 for each of the 5,000 limited-edition, pink drivers sold.

The Bubba Watson and Ping Golf Gait Lab will serve pediatric patients with neuromuscular diseases and disabilities.

Watson will play in the Phoenix Open on Jan. 31-Feb. 3 at TPC Scottsdale.

It’s official, Andersen is new Wisconsin coach

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Several schools tried to lure Gary Andersen away from Utah State.

Wisconsin finally got him.

Andersen was officially hired as the Badgers’ new coach Thursday, and will be formally introduced at a news conference Friday morning. He replaces Bret Bielema, who left the Badgers for Arkansas this month.

“I don’t know if I can really have a word for how excited I am to be at Wisconsin and have this opportunity,” Andersen said in a video on Wisconsin’s website. “I know I’m humbled, I know I’m blessed.”

The 48-year-old Andersen just completed his fourth and best season at Utah State. The 18th-ranked Aggies finished 11-2 with a bowl victory against Toledo and won the Western Athletic Conference. One of those losses was at Wisconsin, where the Aggies missed a 37-yard field goal in the final seconds to allow the Badgers to escape with a 16-14 win.

It’s been a remarkable rise for a program that had been near the bottom of major college football for years, and stuck in distant third in its own state behind BYU and Utah. The Aggies won nine games in the previous four seasons before Andersen took over. The last football coach to finish his tenure in Logan, Utah, with a winning record was Phil Krueger who went 21-12 from 1973-75.

Andersen drew interest from California, Colorado and Kentucky last month, but decided to pass on those opportunities and received a contract extension from Utah State.

When Wisconsin called, however, Andersen couldn’t resist.

“It all came together,” he said in a video on Wisconsin’s website. “By no means was I sitting out there going, ‘I’ve got to have a job, I’ve got to have a job.’ But as soon as this one popped open, to me, this was a special, special place.”

NHL cancels all games through Jan. 14

NEW YORK (AP) — The NHL could be one step away from canceling another hockey season because of a labor fight with the players.

In the latest round of cancellations, the NHL on Thursday wiped out all games through Jan. 14. More than 50 percent of the schedule has been lost, and the rest is now in great danger, too.

“I don’t want to characterize what today’s cancellations mean or don’t mean,” NHL deputy commissioner Bill Daly told The Associated Press in an email. “I will stand on the announcement that was made.”

So far, 625 regular-season games have been called off, including nearly 100 in the announcement made Thursday — the 96th day of the NHL’s lockout. The New Year’s Day Winter Classic and the All-Star game also have been lost.

The NHL had previously canceled games through Dec. 30.

Daly said in a radio interview Wednesday that mid-January is likely the latest the sides could go to make a deal to save the season. When pressed, however, he said he expects the season will be played.

No drop-dead date has been announced by the NHL, which is the only North American professional sports league to cancel a season because of to a labor dispute. The 2004-05 season was lost to a lockout.

Daly said the sides hadn’t been in contact with each other Thursday, and no new talks are planned.

The groups have remained apart since two days of meetings with a federal mediator last week produced no progress. There haven’t been negotiations since Dec. 6 in New York, when talks broke down after a few days of bargaining.

Since the sides split last week, there has been limited contact — phone calls and a brief email exchange.

The NHL believes negotiations should resume only when there is something new to say.

“I don’t think either party is refusing a meeting,” Daly said Wednesday. “But unless there is an indication one side or the other is prepared to move or has a new idea to move the process forward — and so far neither side has indicated — I am not sure what we would do at the meeting.”

“What is the agenda? Who is directing the conversation? We don’t have anything new to say right now.”

SALEM — The Salem eighth grade boys fell 33-18 to Alliance. Salem (1-5) will play Jan. 3 at Boardman Center.

The big plays swung the momentum for the Cougars (8-5) in what had been a tedious defensive struggle. San Diego State (9-4), playing in the hometown bowl for the second time in three years, missed the chance for its first 10-win season since 1977 and had its seven-game winning streak snapped.

Van Noy scored the game's first TD when he came free and hit Adam Dingwell in the end zone, forcing and recovering a fumble for a 10-6 lead.

Results can be submitted via e-mail to bjlisko@salemnews.net, by phone at 330-332-4601 or by fax. If calling please have information ready ahead of time.

HOROSCOPE

By HOLIDAY MATHIS 12/21/12

Mighty Fine Solstice!

"Merry" goes with "Christmas," "happy" goes with "New Year" and "good" goes with "night." After extensive surveying, the astrological consensus decided that "mighty fine" is a near perfect match for "solstice." And of course, by "extensive surveying" I mean I asked myself. And also a cat. So, let us be the first to wish you a mighty fine solstice!

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Even if you're basically happy where you are, you still think about the benefits of a career change. What's the harm in imagining? You'll realize what you love about your current position and what could be better.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You'll strive to be keenly aware of how your attention is like a miracle growth spray. What you focus on will thrive and blossom, and what you ignore will shrivel up and eventually return to the earth.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll strive to create harmonious relationships, but if it doesn't quite work out the way you want it to, don't worry. When people are connected by feuding, they are still connected.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You'll love the fast-paced, engaging action of the day if you get right into the flow. However, if you stand back and watch, you may get intimidated. So don't hesitate. Jump right in.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Are you antisocial? Or are you simply not as user-friendly as people want you to be? The truth is, you don't want just anyone for a friend, especially not the "user" type.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You're a hard one to read today, and some will get it wrong. Most misinterpretations will have to do with what the other person really wishes about you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You can't stand trying to converse with people who simply wait for their turn to talk. They miss the whole point of your communication, which is quite simply a pleasure for the worthy partner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). A bit of silliness is just what the cosmic doctor is ordering for you now. Humor and levity will not only be fun in the moment; they will seal someone's love for you long-term.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Your personal sense of timing clicks perfectly with your environment. It takes confidence to move quickly. For now, it's better to do too much too soon than too little too late.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You'll pay close attention to your return on investment, especially on an energetic level. The thing that seems like it would be fun to accomplish may be more effort than it's worth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Your cosmic gift of the day is objectivity, an essential and strongly beneficial quality for self-realization. So, if you really did live in a glass house, what would people see?

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Beware of people who can't make the simplest of commitments, like deciding on a beverage or choosing a parking place. Surround yourself with people you can count on.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Dec. 21). It's your year for emotional fitness, and positive new associations and habits will form in the months to come. You'll change or hone your style in January. Friendship will open a professional door in February. March is your chance to get active in a new arena. June improves your domestic scene with a big change. Sagittarius and Taurus people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 25, 49, 6 and 28.

WEEKEND LOVE FORECAST: ARIES: You'll be torn between wanting to be with others and wanting time to yourself. TAURUS: A strange twist of fate puts you in the path of love. GEMINI: Stop needing and wanting another person, and focus more on having a good time in the moment. CANCER: Encourage another person to take ownership of the scene you share together. LEO: What seems to be a strictly platonic relationship is, upon closer observation, charged with a deeper layer of exciting chemistry. VIRGO: You'll have revealing conversations that feature your wicked wit. LIBRA: Letting the other person take the driver's seat of a relationship will be fun for you. SCORPIO: You'll make an effort to be around warm, enthusiastic people, and you could fall in love with someone's killer smile. SAGITTARIUS: Catching up with an old friend will lead to new love or a renewal of love. CAPRICORN: Simple logistics like standing versus sitting will impact a relationship. AQUARIUS: Those who truly accept themselves won't bother trying to impress you. PISCES: Passivity is a barrier between people. But you're so welcoming that others feel inclined to interact with and around you, eroding the barrier and dwindling it down to nothing.

Garden not for cats!

Heloise

Dear Heloise: I need help with a very annoying problem. My front-entry garden has been used by a neighborhood CAT for his litter box. I have not been able to remove this odor. Do you have a solution for this problem? — Barbara, via email

Barbara, here are a few things to help remove the odor. Take the top 1/2 inch of soil off and replace it, if you can. Then mix a solution of 1/2 vinegar and 1/2 water, and spray directly on the soil. This will help neutralize the odor and hopefully will deter the cat.

The important thing is to keep the cat from continuing to use your garden as its litter box. Throw citrus peels around the garden, or, if you can, place pine cones over the soil. Cats will no longer have easy access, but you still will be able to water. — Heloise

SEE-THROUGH STORAGE

Dear Heloise: My family is quite large, and on birthdays and holidays, we always buy sheet cakes (large, rectangular one-layer cake — Heloise). The plastic boxes they come in make good storage boxes. You can see what you have stored, and they stack well on shelves in closets. I also discovered that the clear plastic tops work well to cover food at barbecues. — Paula C., Bakersfield, Calif.

TRAVEL HINT

Dear Heloise: I am going on a trip in a few weeks with my 1-year-old. Do you have any hints for child-proofing a hotel room? — Wanda in Virginia

Wanda, traveling with a toddler can be stressful without having to worry about your hotel room! Here is some advice on childproofing while traveling:

- Pack outlet plugs. They are small and don't take up a lot of space.
- If there is a window or sliding door, make sure it locks securely.
- Tie up loose cords, such as curtain pulls. Hair ties work well for this.
- Unplug and store electrical appliances. Most hotels provide hair dryers and coffee makers. Store them out of reach when not in use.
- Cover sharp edges with washcloths and tape.

Remember, children are curious, and a hotel room is a new place to explore! Get down on their level to scope out any other potential hazards. Check with your hotel. Some now offer childproofing kits for use while there. — Heloise

WRINKLE REDUCER

Dear Heloise: To avoid wrinkles or fold lines in felt-backed, vinyl tablecloths, put up to three of the same size, one atop the others, on the table where they are used. They easily can be switched for the season or holiday. As a bonus, this saves storage space. — Fran H., Roswell, N.M.

REUSING BOTTLES

Dear Heloise: After using up a bottle of liquid hand-washing soap, I save the dispenser bottle and reuse it by mixing equal parts of any dishwashing liquid and water. These bottles usually will last through two to four fillings, and you have an economical hand soap. — Martha B. in North Carolina

Soon-to-be-ex still on guest list

DEAR ABBY: My divorce from "Vince" will be final in a few weeks. We have two sons together and we communicate well. Since our breakup, my parents have continued their relationship with him. They say, "You divorced him, we didn't."

They have confirmed that he will be invited to all holiday events. I am so upset about it that I now want nothing to do with them. Vince has his own family who have unanimously removed me from their lives.

I'm hurt by my parents' actions. Am I wrong? And are my feelings normal? — LOST MY PARENTS IN THE DIVORCE IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR LOST: As the father of your children, Vince will always be a part of your life, so my advice is to accept it graciously. Because Vince had a good relationship with your parents, I can understand why they would extend an invitation to the father of their grandchildren. Whether he will choose to accept is the question. His family may have declared you persona non grata because in their eyes you divorced HIM.

That said, your feelings are your feelings. Rather than say they are "wrong," I would point out that they are unproductive at this point. As you move forward with your emotional life, I predict this will become less of an issue.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old divorced man. I use an online dating service to meet women my age, but I'm extremely frustrated by the lack of courtesy.

Why is it so hard for a woman to simply write, "Thanks, but I'm not interested" after getting a note of inquiry? My photos are recent, I'm polite and I send thoughtful notes that show I have read their profiles carefully and think there's a chance we have something in common. I admit, I'm not the handsomest man, but I hold a master's degree and I am financially stable.

I have sent a dozen notes over the last few months, and not one woman has been polite enough to respond. Any thoughts? — DATELESS IN DAYTON

DEAR DATELESS: Please don't let the lack of response make you quit putting yourself out there, because eventually you're going to find someone if you keep trying. You are an intelligent man, and I am sure you have much to offer some lucky woman.

However, I would delicately point out to you that by not responding to your notes these women ARE sending you a message. It is possible that because the "chemistry" is wrong, they do not wish to get into a dialogue.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl and every time I meet people, they think I am 12. How do I look more my age? Please help me. — HONEY IN GEORGIA

DEAR HONEY: A way to accomplish it would be to go to a department store and ask at the cosmetics counter about a demonstration makeover to achieve a more sophisticated look. While you're there, I'm sure a clothing salesperson would also be happy to accommodate you in finding items that girls your age are buying. A different hairstyle could also "update" your image if you are wearing it the way you did a few years ago.

P.S. While you may not think it now, later on you will regard your youthful appearance as an asset. Trust me on that!

Can you have herpes and not know it?

fore we met and says that he is completely innocent. Do you think I could have had this for 30 years and not known it? It seems rather unrealistic to me. — D.F.

ANSWER: Herpes viruses are a group of common viruses that share several traits, one of which is that they all stay dormant in the body and may cause recurrences in times of stress. Herpes simplex 1 causes an outbreak of cold sores: These often come out when people are ill or stressed. Herpes simplex 2 usually causes genital lesions. About 20 percent of adults in the U.S. are positive for HSV-2; many or even most of them don't know they have it. Once you acquire HSV-2, it stays in your body forever, and may (or may not) cause recurrent disease, which most commonly looks like a clear, fluid-filled blister. These are very infectious, but it is possible to transmit the virus even when there are no symptoms.

It is possible that you acquired the condition 30 or more years ago. The test isn't able to tell how long you've had it.

DEAR DRS. DONOHUE AND ROACH: I have high blood pressure and

DEAR DRS. DONOHUE AND ROACH: I have been with my husband for 33 years, and for the past six I have been suspicious of him being unfaithful. I went to the doctor and tested negative for HIV, but I was positive for herpes 1 and herpes 2. My husband claims I could have had this since behave been on medication for about 10 years. My blood pressure is under control, but my doctor sometimes tells me it's on the high side. I live in an area with very hard water, and I have a water softener that I constantly put bags of salt into. I drink eight glasses of water a day. Could this salt be affecting my blood pressure? A workman recommended a water purifier. With how much water I drink, should I consider this? If so, any recommendations? — S.B.

ANSWER: This is a great question, and one I've never thought about. A little research showed me that hardness in water means high amounts of minerals, especially calcium and magnesium. A traditional water softener uses table salt to exchange sodium for the calcium and magnesium. The harder the water, the more sodium will be added. An average 8-ounce glass of softened water has about 70 milligrams of sodium, but very hard water can add 200 mg of sodium. Since we recommend no more than 2,400 mg of sodium a day, it's possible that you could be getting more than half of your daily recommended sodium from drinking water.

Some people with high blood pressure are very sensitive to salt. I usually recommend a trial of low sodium intake to see if it helps bring blood pressure down, and it seems that your blood pressure is sometimes borderline. You might try drinking no-sodium bottled water for a week to see if that brings down your blood pressure, but you should take your blood pressure every day before and after switching to see if it really makes a difference. If you decide to try removing salt from your home drinking water, the Pelican brand seems to be a well-regarded home water purifier.

Lupus sufferer can't take scents

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I'm 27 and have lupus, a chronic autoimmune disease. My condition is usually under control, and I live a normal life. The problem is, I'm very sensitive to perfume, air fresheners and cigarette smoke, and with my medications, I can't drink alcohol.

A lot of my girlfriends throw candle parties and cosmetic parties or go out drinking, all of which involve things I react badly to. I typically decline these invitations, suggest something else or go along and stay silent so I won't be a wet blanket. At a recent cosmetic party, I stupidly allowed a friend to smear makeup on me after being goaded into it. Within seconds, my face and scalp were burning, and I jumped up and stuck my head under the faucet. Everybody laughed, except the hostess, who was "deeply offended." I haven't been invited to any parties since.

It upsets me that my friends, who have known me since we were children, don't seem to care that the majority of their plans include activities that will make me physically ill. I have offered to host get-togethers at my home, but one of my friends told me my house "smells funny." When I ask friends, family or co-workers to lay off the perfume or air freshener, I hear, "You're the only one who complains." Even my sister douses herself in a perfume that gives me hives and then gets insulted that I don't want to hug her.

How do I explain to my friends that their idea of fun literally makes me sick? I'm starting to feel very left out because of my disease. — Shouldn't Be Limited by Lupus

Dear Not Limited: Your friends seem a bit immature, which makes them too focused on their own enjoyment and less sympathetic toward you. Do they know you have lupus? (Saying that you can't drink or are sensitive to cologne might seem optional to them.) When you can participate without too much risk, you should make the effort, but otherwise, we recommend you start looking for better friends. For additional assistance and support, try the Lupus Foundation of America (lupus.org).

Dear Annie: A co-worker and her husband are expecting a baby in late December and decided to throw themselves an elaborate baby shower. They have plenty of friends, relatives and colleagues who could have given them a shower. I have never heard of giving one for yourself. Isn't this rude? — Flummoxed in Florida

Dear Florida: The idea of showers (bridal or baby) was for friends to help a new couple stock their home or prepare for the new child by voluntarily gifting them with things they would need. This sweet, helpful welcome has somehow morphed into the idea that people are entitled to demand gifts for every occasion. Throwing oneself a baby shower smacks of greed. It says, "I expect you to give me presents."

However, it's possible that none of their friends offered to help and they thought it would be OK to do it themselves. Whether to attend is up to you.
